OHIO INSPECTOR GENERAL INVESTIGATION FINDS WRONGDOING AT OHIO COMMISSION ON FATHERHOOD

Columbus, Ohio, March 12, 2013

The Ohio Inspector General has issued a report of investigation finding wrongful conduct by the former executive director of the Ohio Commission on Fatherhood.

Acting on an anonymous complaint, the investigation revealed Tracy Robinson received secondary income from undisclosed sources not listed on the financial disclosure forms Robinson filed with the Ohio Ethics Commission. Discrepancies were found in timekeeping records Robinson filed with the Ohio Commission on Fatherhood, and the investigation uncovered instances when Robinson was being paid to work for the state and also collecting pay to work the same days and hours, at a Columbus social service organization.

The matter has been referred to the Ohio Ethics Commission, the Franklin County Prosecuting Attorney, and the Columbus City Attorney.
